

Jean Day at MAS

Emilie McClure, whose grandmother was affected by multiple sclerosis, organized a successful DIY fundraiser on the Milwaukee Academy of Science campus. After brainstorming ideas for a fundraiser, a plan was constructed to include the faculty and staff on campus. The event, known as Jeans Day at MAS, took place for the first time on March 21, 2012. Sixty participating teachers donated a minimum of $3 and in return were given the opportunity to wear jeans to work. Jeans Day at MAS raised $319 for the Society. With the success of its debut under her belt, McClure plans to hold the event again next year.
